Question	Answer
Does the website meet the requirements for being regarded satisfactory in terms of the expectations?	Yes, the expectations have been met. I would like to say that I am glad about the final product.
Will you be able to replace or modify the product if necessary?	Yes, we have two or more student who know how to modify the webpage and database.
Comparing this website to the one you previously used, how did you find it?	As we discussed, the website features an easy-to-understand layout. It also has notable features and parts that will attract potential participants' interest. The registration form is much simpler to understand.
Are you satisfied with the registration form and the database that the form is connected.	Yes, the form is clear and understandable as I want it. Additionally, the fact that the validity of the phone number and email address is verified using certain criteria before the form is submitted relieved me of the concerns of spam submissions. Finally, having an admin panel and being able to ensure account login and authentication made me pleased.
Do you believe the images and colors used for the site are appropriate for representing the organization?	I mostly approve of the website's appearance. While some of the photos lack clarity, this is not a major issue as they can be easily updated by our organization. The color scheme used is eye-catching without being overpowering, which is something we greatly appreciate.
Did the product address your organization's concerns and problems?	Yes, our main concern was that potential contributors would find it difficult to comprehend the organization's concept owing to the complexity on our previous website, and I believe this issue has now been resolved.
What recommendations do you have for the product's future development?	I have no suggestions, but perhaps the organizing team can reach us through a form in addition to providing their email addresses. However, we may apply this in the future as needed.
