Criterion F - Product Evaluation and Future Product Development

My client and I had a thorough discussion about it. He stated his belief that the website will have a significant impact on their reputation. Additionally, the client completed a survey.

Examining The Performance Criteria Listed in Criterion B:

a) A Duplicate of The Website Files.

The customer received a backup of the website files for usage in the future in case they require it for their own development purposes. Standardized page design.

b) Standardized Page Design.

The same color, fonts, and layout are used across all pages via CSS. For instance, the name of each web page is located at the top. In addition, the navigation bar has preserved its characteristic features on every page.

c) Allows People to Reach the Organization.

It is anticipated that the organization will attract a wider audience through the effective presentation of the organization it hosts and the students responsible for organizing them.

d) Increased Security Measures Have Been Implemented on The Server And Domain Side To Prevent Unauthorized Access.

For enhanced security login details are required for "Hostinger" server and the admin panel of the website.

e) The Website Is Accessible to Customers and Has Been Shared Legitimately.

The domain of the website was purchased through "BlueHost" and published according to the server policies.

Recommendations for Future Development of the Product

While the website has enabled the customer to better represent themselves and they are satisfied with the product, there are still areas for improvement.

1) Creating a contact form.
2) The organization's homepage statistics can be updated in real-time.
3) The use of copyright for images.

Implementing a contact form on a website may be effective way for participants to ask their questions or requests for further information. Participants may easily submit queries and obtain replies from the organization. The presence of a contact form can improve clarity.

Statistics on a company's homepage may be updated in real-time with the recent data. This implies that accurate information about the company will be available to visitors. The ability to update data in real-time enables the business to raise participant awareness in the organization.

All photographs on the website are screenshots collected and released with the students' permission during the activity. The publication of these photos on the Internet without their permission man be inappropriate.
